ARMY FLIER DIES IN SEA: PLANE WITH 8 LOST

FIFTH TO DIE IN EFFORT TO FLY THE MAIL

Companions Were Rescued by Navy
Destroyer

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Planes and vessels searched the sea off New York today for the body of Lieut. George F. McDermott, fifth flier to die in connection with the Army's task of carrying the air mail.

Enroute from New York to Langley Field, Va., to pick up mail planes, McDermott and two other fliers were forced down amid crashing waves yesterday off Rockaway Point.

The Navy destroyer, Bernadou, picked up McDermott's companions, Lieut. J. H. Rothrock and Lieut. W. S. Pockock, Jr., who were weak from exposure. It could not find McDermott nor salvage the disintegrating plane.

Other high spots of the air mail situation:

High Spots Today

1. Postmaster General Farley today denied to the Senate air mail committee that he had made a "personal remark" to Walter F. Brown about Senator Black (D-Ala.), committee chairman, as some inferred yesterday from testimony of the former Postmaster General.

Farley had testified yesterday that he had made a "personal remark" to Brown on the occasion of his visit to the Postmaster General's office to return official ocean and airmail correspondence he said was found among his personal effects.

He had refused demands of committee members to say what the remark was without Farley's consent. Farley came from North Carolina to deny the implication. Brown denied to Senate investigators today he had testified Farley had made a "personal remark" to him about Chairman Black of the committee, but declined to say what Farley's remark was about.

"Almost Impossible"

2. Major C. L. Tinker, commander of the western division of the air mail service, said yesterday the Army faced an "almost impossible task" in flying the mail at short notice. It was not a question of flying ability, he said, but the Army personnel and equipment were not for a different kind of service.

3. In Washington the President was drawing plans to have private industry re-bid for the mail contracts.

McDermott, whose family lives in Greenfield, Pa., slipped to his death in the icy Atlantic hours after the plane faltered on an ailing.

His companions, also heavy flyers, could not help him. The Navy destroyer and two coast-guard boats and a police plane went to the rescue. The police plane quickly found the plane but was forced down and had to taxi ashore when the controls froze. Five hours elapsed before the destroyer located the plane.

Twice Lost Grip

McDermott twice lost his grip on the ice-covered wing of the wrecked plane and slipped overboard. The first time he managed to grab a wireless antenna and pull himself aboard. The second time a wave struck him and carried him away. Ten minutes later a searchlight of the destroyer picked up the plane and the two remaining pilots were taken aboard.

Only one of the five Army fliers who died in the past eight days was carrying mail, the others being on errands connected with the mail service. A sixth was killed on a private flight.

The annual earning power of employed boys 14, 15, and 16 years old, who were attending day continuation schools in the state of New York, was estimated at $50,000,000 in 1929.

Mrs. Massie, who won world-wide attention in 1932 when she was the victim of an assault in Honolulu, divorced Lieut. Thomas H. Massie on charges of extreme mental cruelty here yesterday.

States and Japan Must Not Think of War, Hirota Says

Tokyo, Feb. 24—(AP)—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told the House of Peers today that both the United States and Japan must take "diplomatic action" to prevent the two nations from becoming war-minded.

Hirota made the statement in discussing the possibility of an agreement to divide the Pacific into two spheres of interest.

Illinois Sheriffs Offer Uncle Sam Their Assistance

LaSalle—Sheriff E. J. Welter of LaSalle county, president of the Illinois Sheriffs' Association, offered to Federal authorities the services of the group in fighting major crimes. Welter said failure of authorities to co-operate was responsible for laxity of enforcement.

In the company of Mrs. Vida Claywell, "Woodie" Volner and Gail Parsons of Reno, she went to the dinner party last night. During the dinner, friends said, she became ill and Dr. Muller and her attorney, George Springmeyer, were summoned to the resort. They took her to St. Mary's hospital, where attendants said she would rest for a few days.

Mrs. Massie won her divorce at a private trial before District Judge Benjamin F. Currier. After it was granted, she told friends she would "celebrate" by attending the dinner.

SIX MORMON WORKERS IN MAJOR WRECK

Bus Turns Over Near Little Station in Arizona Desert

Wickenburg, Ariz., Feb. 24—(AP)—Six were killed and 27 injured early today when a warning light at a highway detour failed to function in the rain, sending a California-bound Mormon church passenger bus crashing over an embankment near Agula, 35 miles west of here.

The bus was enroute to Home Gardens, Calif., after a four-day pilgrimage to the Mormon temple at Mesa, Ariz.

The dead, as identified by Bishop George F. Price of the Mormon church, who came here from Phoenix to take charge:

Elizabeth McArthur, 50 years old, Southgate, Calif.

Genevieve Seadlock, 25, Southgate.

Mrs. Eugene Gowers, 34, Lynwood, Calif.

Sarah Crawford, 45, Southgate.

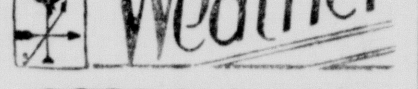

Mrs. Frank Riggs, 30, Huntington Park, Calif.

Rea Haws, two-year-old, daughter of Pearl and Dave Haws, of Southgate.

Bishop Morris R. Perry of Home Gardens, in charge of the party, said nearly all were asleep when he crashed.

"We really don't know what happened," he said. "We came to the end of the pavement, and I felt the bus lurch. Somebody said, 'There she goes!' and we went over. Almost all of us were asleep. My wife and I were among the fortunate ones who were in the front part of the bus, and we were 'browed clear.'"

Convictions in Many Important Criminal Cases in Cook County Jeopardized by Supreme Court

Method Used in Selecting Grand Jury Held
to be Illegal

Chicago, Feb. 24—(AP)—Convictions in virtually every important criminal case in Cook county during the last two years were threatened and some 700 pending criminal indictments were placed in jeopardy by the state Supreme Court ruling that Cook county's method of selecting grand juries is illegal.

The court decision, handed down on a comparatively obscure robbery case, will be used as a lever in an effort to nullify the conviction of Roger Touhy and two co-defendants in the John Factor case; defense counsel William Scott Stewart announced.

Other principal cases involved include the indictments pending against Samuel and Martin Insull, the Bain bank fraud cases, the Illinois Life Insurance Company fraud case, the Sanitary District "whoopee" case, the "TNT" racket cases, the Winokop murder trial, and the Gail Swoley and Frank Souder kidnapping case.

State's Hasty Plans
Meanwhile, the state made hasty preparations to combat the effects of such a ruling.

State Attorney Thomas J. Courtney announced he would move for a rehearing and ask the Supreme Court, as a matter of public policy, to reverse itself.

Attorneys Lewis F. Jacobsen sought a remedy in another direction announcing the state Assembly would be asked to validate all present convictions and indictments. Jacobsen, who is counsel for the creditors in the Insull case, urged a meeting of city and county officials and bar association members.

The Supreme Court's ruling was in the case of Jack Lieber, convicted of robbery. Lieber's case was not remanded to the Criminal Court for a new trial.

Case Not Sent Back
If it is the theory of the court, lawyers pointed out, that the case could not be sent back to the Criminal Court because the indictment, being illegal, left no record against the man, others in the county jail could apply for freedom on writs of habeas corpus, on the ground that they are being illegally detained.

Some of the Criminal Court judges point out, however, that the court could refuse to issue such writs, thus forcing each defendant to appeal to the Supreme Court. The defendants would be held, giving authorities another opportunity to indict them.

Judge Walter P. Steffen conferred last night with Chief Justice Philip J. Egan of the Criminal Court. They arranged for a meeting of judges Monday morning to formulate a uniform system of handling the flood of motions and writs expected to be filed by defense attorneys.

For "Picked" Jury
The Supreme Court held that the grand jury must be composed of the first 23 men whose names are drawn from the jury list. The practice

MOVIES TAKEN AT LAST EVE'S CAGE CONTESTS

Teams and Spectators Caught: Show Will
be Given Soon

Crowds at the Dixon high school last evening to see the DeKalb-Dixon basketball game were caught in the net of pictures being woven by the Universal Community Service cameraman, for showing at the Dixon Theater on March 13 and 14.

Just before the game both teams staged a scrimmage and thus got into the movies. Close-ups of both teams were made after the game, showing the scars of the battle they had been through.

At a meeting of several Dixon merchants held at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, comprehensive plans were made for the "New Deal" merchandising event, planned to be held during the week previous to the showing of the Dixon special moving picture, at the theater. Tickets for the show are to be given out by cooperating merchants, with purchases made by their customers and friends. Only with one of these "Merchant's Guest Tickets" will one be able to see oneself in the movies.

BEGIN ACTION TO SECURE HI-WAY THROUGH COUNTY

County Supt. In Capital
Regarding State
Route No. 87

County Superintendent of Highways Fred W. Leake will go to Springfield next week to start action in securing the routing of a new state highway connecting routes 6 and 26, which is one of the last of the projects under the one hundred million dollar road bond issue, and which is to be built during the coming summer. The route was originally laid out as state highway, route 87, beginning at Cavanaugh's corners in Ogle county, north of Woodstock and extending south a distance of about five miles and connecting with Route 6, the Lincoln Highway at Gap Grove. Practically all of this construction would be through Lee county.

Second Survey Made
According to an announcement made public today, a second survey for the same route has been made, which would extend the route through Whiteside county a distance of more than 12 miles and costing approximately $160,000. This would bring the new route north from the ball park at the east limits of Sterling, through Penrose and then east to Cavanaugh's corners. It is this route which is to be opposed by County Superintendent Leake at Springfield next week and, if necessary, will be appealed directly to Governor Henry Horner, it was said today.

After meeting with the road and bridge committee of the board of supervisors and the Dixon Loyalty League committee, Supt. Leake was instructed to go to Springfield next week to oppose the re-routing of the new state road. It was also decided that Lee county would accede to connecting the two important state highways by connecting with route 6, the Lincoln Highway at the Fairville corner, but that in the event that the new survey is considered at Springfield, that the project will be enjoined as soon as the contract for the work is let.

County Superintendent Leake will point out to the highway officials at Springfield the increased mileage to be paid under the new survey plan, which will triple the expense, and will present strong arguments against changing the original survey.

LEADER SHOWS FEAR WHEN HE HEARS DECREE

New Trial Is Denied:
Three are Rushed to Joliet

BULLETIN

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 24—(AP)—Roger Touhy and his two mates, sentenced to serve 99 years in prison for the kidnaping of John Factor, were delivered safely to Illinois state penitentiary here at 1:45 o'clock today by a heavy guard.

Chicago, Feb. 24—(AP)—In shackles and leg irons, Roger Touhy and 2 of his gangsters rode to the state penitentiary at Joliet today to begin serving sentences of 99 years for the $70,000 John Factor kidnaping.

Eleven automobile loads of police, armed with machine guns and riot equipment, accompanied the desperadoes—Touhy, Gustave Shaffer, and Albert Kater—on the 40 mile ride to prison.

They began the trip just 36 hours after a Criminal Courts jury found them guilty of holding Factor 12 days last July and gave them the most severe sentences possible, except for death in the electric chair.

Touhy Shows Fear

Touhy, apparently nauseated with fear several times since the sentence, walked to the automobile for the prison trip with a handkerchief clutched over his mouth.

Kater grinned and waved a farewell to a crowd of spectators outside the county jail. Shaffer's face showed no emotion.

The three prisoners, eligible for parole after they have served 33 years each, rode away to prison in the tonneau of an automobile. They were manacled and police and deputy sheriffs rode with them.

Their departure came after Judge Michael Feinberg refused a motion by defense attorney William Scott Stewart for a new trial.

A few minutes after he had denied the three another trial, Judge Feinberg denied a motion to hold up their commitment to prison, and pronounced sentence upon them.

It was a sentence of 99 years each in the penitentiary, fixed early Thursday by the second jury to try them.

Leader Shows Fear
Roger Touhy, the jaunty leader of the Touhy gang and chief of the three defendants, became weak as the Judge read the sentence.

Overcome by nausea, as he was when the jury came in with its verdict, he jammed his free hand against his mouth.

Nearly 50 armed guards surrounded the trio as they stood before the bench.

William Scott Stewart, the defense attorney, cited in his argument for a new trial the decision, handed down by the Illinois Supreme Court yesterday, holding that the customary manner of selecting Cook county grand juries is not proper.

Judge Feinberg said:
Decision Not Final
The Supreme Court ruled yesterday, but not yet final, and consequently it is not binding upon this court. There is hope now that the Supreme Court will make a second decision on this subject, and will realize the dire effect its ruling will have otherwise in Cook county where some 700 indictments are now pending and would be undermined.

The defense attorney had raised the point on which the Supreme Court ruled by making a motion to quash the indictments (Continued on Page Two)

More than a thousand cases totalling about 20,000 pairs of Dixon-made shoes, were shipped Thursday afternoon. Two loads totalling about the same number of pairs had been previously shipped by truck. At the present time there are 250 men and women employed in the Dixon factory.

Superintendent T. J. Lyons stated this morning that the plant at the present time is producing an average of 2,800 pairs of shoes daily and this number is to be increased as soon as possible. At the present

DISAPPEARED IN BLIZZARD OVER ROCKIES

Five of Eight Aboard
Were Passengers
Coming East

Rock Springs, Wyo., Feb. 24—(AP)—Fear for the lives of eight persons grew today as a wide search was organized for a United Air Lines transport plane lost in a raging mountain blizzard and fog.

The plane, carrying five passengers and a crew of three from Salt Lake City toward Cheyenne, Wyo., failed to reach there on schedule late yesterday. Officials said it must have come down last night, probably somewhere near here.

This belief hung on the report of a Japanese section foreman who said that the plane frantically calling for directions, passed over his shack at Emory, Utah, at 3 P. M. CST, yesterday.

Lost in Blizzard

The foreman said he received the request for directions on his short-wave wireless set. He ran from the house, saw the plane skimming

Delay is Lucky For Gov. Miller—

Rock Springs, Wyo., Feb. 24—(AP)—Because of an extended conversation with the Governor of Utah, Gov. Leslie A. Miller of Wyoming missed the United Airlines plane sought today in a blizzard.

Governor Miller, returning from a vacation trip to California, had made arrangements to ride the plane from Salt Lake City to Cheyenne.

close to the ground and shouted to it that it was over Emery. Then, almost at once, the plane roared away into a blinding blizzard he said.

The huge craft had departed from Salt Lake City for Cheyenne at 1 P. M. yesterday and it would have been impossible for it to remain aloft more than five hours.

Passenger and Crew

The passenger list:
E. L. Walker, flying from Los Angeles to Rock Springs.

J. J. Sterling, Benton Harbor, Mich., flying from Salt Lake City to Chicago.

Bert McLaughlin, Perry, Iowa; W. B. Bergland, Boone, Iowa; and M. Zinsmaster, Des Moines, Ia., flying from Los Angeles to Des Moines.

The crew:
Pilot Lloyd Anderson, Cheyenne.

Co-pilot J. Danielson, Cheyenne.

Stewardess Mary Carter, Cheyenne, formerly of Omaha and Chicago and originally from somewhere in the Carolinas.

The ship, a huge Boeing low-winged monoplane, was under routine instructions to report by wireless 30 minutes after leaving port. The report never was made, Boeing officials said at Cheyenne.

EAST OF SALT LAKE

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 24—(AP)—Frank Caldwell, operations manager of United Airlines, said today the search for the company's missing passenger plane, carrying eight persons, had turned to the blizzard swept country just east of Salt Lake City. Five of the eight were passengers.

Caldwell said it had definitely been determined the ship had not been seen nor heard since it passed Frawley's canyon, about 18 miles east of Salt Lake City, soon after it took off for Cheyenne.

Back from Sleep

BULLETIN

San Francisco, Feb. 24—(AP)—"Ginger" a trained seal, died today after an operation to restore his sight. The heroic efforts of a fire department inhaler squad failed to revive the prized animal.

San Francisco, Feb. 24—(AP)—operation was performed today to restore the sight of "Ginger," a trained seal, and a fire department effort to bring the animal back to life was unsuccessful.

So powerful was the anesthetic required to "knock out" the animal for the operation that he had not recovered more than an hour after it was performed. The firemen used two bottles of oxygen in futile efforts to revive Ginger and then connected two more bottles to the inhaler.

The "grave" was about two miles from the beach home.

Ram Entombed in Ice
A ram believed to have been entombed in the ice for years, possibly centuries, was discovered recently in an almost perfect state of preservation in Yosemite National Park, in the vicinity of which mountain sheep have been rated extinct for at least 50 years. The animal was found lying against a pillar of ice apparently built up by its own shadow about 30 feet from the point of a glacier.

KENTUCKY GIRL

Had Sued Knoxville Man for $100,000 at Covington

Covington, Ky., Feb. 24—(AP)—A jury of twelve men today returned a verdict for a total of $80,000 for Miss Evelyn Hazen, of Knoxville, Tenn., in her suit for $100,000 against Ralph P. Scharinghaus, also of Knoxville.

She had sued on the grounds that her former lover had, after a 15-year romance, failed to keep promises she alleged he made to marry her.

The verdict came after less than two hours deliberation.

Before beginning consideration of the case the jury heard a plea from her attorney to at least "give her this vindication," despite testimony from Scharinghaus that he has no job, property or income.

Miss Hazen sued for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise. The jury, however, gave her a verdict of $65,000 on that count, and $15,000 on a second count charging damages because of inducing her to have intimate relations. She had asked $50,000 on that count also.

Subsequently, counsel for Scharinghaus announced plans to file a motion asking for a new trial.

Miss Hazen told the jury, "the thing that means the most to me is that you believe me. You took my story as the truth and have vindicated me. That's all I wanted."

HAND WRITING

Ladd Man Is Alleged
Writer of An Extortion Note

Ogle county authorities today were awaiting reports from a Chicago handwriting expert to aid them in determining whether or not Harry Zahn, 32, formerly of Ladd, Ill., was the author of a threatening note written to Mrs. Maggie Artz, who resides near Polo, last week. At present Zahn is being held in the county jail at Oregon on a warrant charging him with extortion.

Sheriff Frank Murray, who is conducting the investigation, is reported to have expressed confidence that Zahn wrote the note which not only threatened but demanded that Mrs. Artz pay $1,200 or suffer harm, although the defendant so far has maintained his innocence.

A report on the handwriting angle, after the comparison of the note and samples of Zahn's handwriting by a Chicago expert, was expected sometime today, it was announced. Zahn has been in the neighborhood of Oregon and Polo recently, it is said, and is reported to be the son of a woman recently hired by Mrs. Artz, an elderly widow, as housekeeper.

Details of the case have been kept secret for a number of days as the authorities sought to find further information that might aid them in the investigation. Zahn has been in custody since Saturday. Sheriff Murray stated today. Since receipt of the threatening letter last week the home of Mrs. Artz has been under surveillance while the investigation was under way.

New Belgian Monarchs Facing an Historic Responsibility

BY ALBERT W. WILSON
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Brussels, Feb. 24—Leopold III and Queen Astrid faced together today the historic responsibility of all Belgian monarchs—the task of keeping two nationalities under one flag.

Their first important duty as the new rulers of the compact little country is to make an appearance in every town and village in Belgium.

Several months, but may require before in the 100 years of Belgian independence, it has been required of the new sovereigns. They alone symbolize the unity of the Flemings and the Walloons.

Privacy at End

The comparative privacy Leopold and Queen Astrid, former Princess of Sweden, have known during the few years of their married life was over forever today as a result of their enthronement.

Now they will take up residence in the royal castle at suburban Laeken, quitting their cosier chalet nearby.

Their simple and direct way of meeting people in yesterday's inaugural celebration already has won them the devotion of their subjects.

All Enthusiastic

Also, political groups of all hues are talking enthusiastically today of the surprising revelation in the enthronement ceremonies that young Leopold speaks Flemish as perfectly as he does French—the Walloon tongue. He was required to use both languages in taking the oath.

This fact may aid Leopold, Flemish separatists, although they now hold only seven seats in Parliament, were reported to have encouraged two Communist deputies who created a disturbance in Parliament Thursday.

The same Communists shouted derisively during the cheering for Leopold at his enthronement Friday, but were heard only by those nearest them.

Power Generating Plant for Mendota Urged by Makers

(Telegraph Special Service)
Mendota, Feb. 24—Data that will be used in seeking to interest the city of Mendota in a power generating plant was compiled here Thursday by a representative of a manufacturing firm. The company, it was said, would possibly have a representative before a future council meeting when a future plan will be made to have the city purchase a power unit to generate current for city use, such as street lighting and public building illumination.

Although little was said by the city officials here, it was indicated that no plan was being discussed or entertained by the council at present. The plan that is to be presented would not include selling power to residents, it was believed.

Thursday, the company statistical expert was going over the city light bills on record at the city clerk's office securing facts on the power consumption of the city. This locality at the present

HOSPITAL TRAINING
Twenty Girl Scouts received their annual instruction in First Aid and Home Nursing at the Katherine Shaw Bethea hospital this morning. Through the courtesy of the teaching staff at the hospital it has been possible, the last three years, to efficiently train Girl Scouts in home care of the ill and to prepare them in the administration of first aid during emergencies. Such training not only benefits the individual girl, but it has a strong tendency to bring about greater understanding of health measures in many homes.

Silver Wedding Anniversary Observed

On Sunday afternoon, February 18th, shortly after the noon hour a number of relatives, friends and neighbors, including some visitors from Chicago made a surprise call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neils Arne who live on their farm in Alto township, for the purpose of celebrating their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. A goodly company came, laden with well filled baskets of food and soon a delightful meal was served to the many gathered in the home. Following the meal and merry fellowship an informal program which had been arranged previously was another pleasant surprise for the "bride and groom."

The program consisted of the Wedding March from Lohengrin and was played by Miss Mabel Oakland, a prayer by Rev. H. L. Brett, which was followed by a duet, "I Love You Truly," sung by Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bettel. Rev. Brett then spoke a few words of congratulation on behalf of the company and expressed good wishes for continued years of happiness and joy. Mrs. Brett then read a short verse suitable for the occasion and sang a solo, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," by Stults. A tray of several pieces of silver was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Arne at the close of the program by Mr. Bettel as a token of esteem and good wishes from the friends and neighbors among whom Mr. and Mrs. Arne have lived during the years of their married life.

Neils Y. Arne of Steward, a cousin, acted as master of ceremonies, and gave a few reminiscences of early experiences which were enjoyed by all.

In Dealing With The Wilful Child

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
We want our children to be ambitious. Nothing is dearer to a mother's heart than to dream of the day when her boy or girl will set up his will against the world and beat it.

If she is an observing person she knows that few people succeed through lucky breaks. Also she knows that few get there altogether by brains. It takes fortitude, perseverance and above all "will" to make a place in the world. Something assertive. Push, shove and the determination to get what one wants.

But this is a terribly hard thing to get into a child for it must be encouraged in childhood if it is to be real, and at the same time make him obedient.

Handling the Strong-Willed
The chances are that almost every time he wants his own way he isn't allowed to have it. This time it isn't a free and equal fight with other candidates of his own ability and age, but an unfair balance where his opponents are his parents, older, wiser, stronger, and with the sceptre of authority on their side.

So what is to be done? Shall she give in to Bob or Mary when they want to do things she doesn't approve of and enlist her husband to do the same thing, or shall she take a chance and continue to dominate and dictate and see to it that they obey unquestionably?

If all children were alike the answer might be to take a safe middle course, and to do both, encouraging obedience, at the same time being careful not to break spirit. Usually a keen parent can and does work this out pretty well. But the truth is that the very strong-will child presents a problem that baffles the best of us. He seems to know no half-measure but wants his own way all the time. He doesn't want to compromise or listen to reason.

It seems then as though there is just one solution. Let him be his own master, but try to instill in him a strong sense of right and wrong. Let him obey, but obey himself. Let him be controlled, but controlled by himself. Let him be judged but judged by himself.

Bring Out Good in Child

Usually the strong-willed child is a pretty smart child. He is quick to see justice even as he is quick to resent injustice.

Character growth that includes sympathy, generosity, truth and service is to be made much of in such a child. The stronger the will the more of the virtues will be needed to carry that will to a great end.

To thwart the independent boy or girl is absolutely necessary only when undesirable traits have got a start. What we must guard against in this however is in jumping to the conclusion that they are no good because they refuse to obey us every minute. Try to see he good in them and bring it out. Be chary of negative orders to avoid argument. And blaze a trail that parent and child may follow together rather than against each other.

Nurse will and you have ambition backed by real force, break it and you kill both. Parents should agree on a course and work it out together.

Am. Legion Auxiliary at Jas. Phalen Home

The Ladies of the American Legion Auxiliary spent a very pleasant day at the home of Mrs. James Phalen, Tuesday, Feb. 20th. She was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Kelly.

As this is to be a patriotic program all patriotic orders are cordially invited to spend the afternoon with the Auxiliary. The meeting will be called at 2:30 in the Legion hall.

It requires 35 carrier boys to deliver the Evening Telegraph to the door of subscribers each evening.

Frances Willard W. C.T.U. Meeting Held

The regular monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at 2:30 o'clock and it was also the memorial meeting of Frances Willard, with a very instructive and interesting program. The president presiding. Meeting opened by all singing the chorus, "He Saves, He Keeps, He Satisfies" with Mrs. W. M. Lee as pianist.

Song, "A Charge to Keep I Have."

Mrs. Gilbert Stansell led the beautiful and inspiring devotionals, "Scripture Music," Passages Miss Willard underlined in her Bible; which so fittingly expressed her living throughout her life, closing with prayer.

The president read, "The Voice for Today" by Frances Willard. Song, "Advance Not Retreat."

Miss Eileen Klein favored with a beautiful piano number: "There's a Calm for Those who Weep."

Miss Flora Seals, secretary gave her report.

Mrs. W. E. Frey, treasurer gave her report, both reports being accepted as read.

The president told of the executive meeting held at her home on February 8, when plans were made for a days "Institute" to be held in one of the Dixon churches, the latter part of March, the day to be announced later.

The address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Isaac Divan, who has always been an ardent worker for the W. C. T. U. her address being just filled with inspiration and enthusiasm and making those who listened feel that she would give her last bit of strength to the cause of temperance. She explained by taking "Faith" as the beginning which means forsaking "I Take Him."

An acrostic given from the word "Success" was very instructive.

S—Succeed, save and sever from the bad.

U—Urges, utilize.

C—Consume, criticize or condemn.

C—Cope with or for.

E—Enthusiasm, earnestness.

S—Sacrifice, subverting, saving.

S—Singing, smiling, utilizing; joy in the work.

"Success" recalling meaning the prosperous fermentation of our W. C. T. U. Mrs. Divan closed her splendid address with Walter Babcock's beautiful poem "Be Strong."

For God and Home, O weary one, Retrace the toilsome trail; Although our work seems all undone, No cause like ours can fail.

Can love forsake His own until Established, grounded in His will, Safe-guards again prevail?

Weep not? Look up? From His high star, Immovable, steadfast, white, Love flings this message full and far,

Love, strong in deathless night, All questions at my judgment bar Remain unsettled till they are Decided for the Right!

Different ones responded with criticisms of the school teachers of Williams and Franklin counties and the Rock River Valley Teachers Association for their participation in sending 1000 teachers to lobby the legislature at Springfield to persuade the floating of a bond issue of several million dollars which would thereby increase the expenses of the taxpayers of this state.

Tax meeting at Ashton was announced for Saturday evening and also a meeting at West Brooklyn Sunday afternoon. Attorney Regan of Rockford will be the speaker at both meetings.

THE PRESIDENT INDULGES IN BAD TEMPER.

(Fremont, Neb., Tribune)

The President has signed the code of fair competition for the governing of daily newspapers, after some seven months of negotiation that at times approached a stage of heated controversy. The major conflict was waged over the inclusion for a provision specifically stating that, in accepting the code, the newspapers do not "thereby waive any constitutional rights, or consent to the imposition of any requirements that might restrict or interfere with the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press."

Mr. Roosevelt's approval of the code includes approval of that clause, thus according to the demand of every recognized association of newspaper publishers in the country. He accompanied the approval, however, with a burst of temper that is not characteristic of him and that does him no credit.

Referring to the "free press" clause, the President says: "The recitation of the freedom of the press clause in the code has no more place here than would the recitation of the whole constitution or of the ten commandments. The freedom guaranteed by the constitution is freedom of expression and that will be scrupulously respected—but it is not freedom to work children, or do business in a fire trap or violate the laws against obscenity, libel and lewdness."

This language is unworthy of the President, and, of course, eminently unfair to the American press. No responsible publisher or his representative ever sought the exceptions listed. The laws against obscenity libel and lewdness are older than the code, and are not changed by it. Any intimation that the insistence by the publishers that the freedom of expression be specifically recognized is inspired by their desire to publish obscene, libelous or lewd matter is not grounded in fact.

The rights that the publishers seek to safeguard are the rights of every American citizen to think and speak as conscience may dictate. These are not privileges, in the American concept. They are sacred properties, and are as vital to the man on the street, the citizen in his home, the clergyman in his pulpit, the orator on any rostrum, as to the editor of a newspaper. If they are assailed or impaired, as they apply to any one of these, they have been in that degree withdrawn from all the others.

Mr. Roosevelt has disclaimed, unquestionably in all sincerity, any intention of restricting any citizen's right of free expression. The incontrovertible fact remains, however, that in the form of the various codes under the National Recovery Act the instrumentation has been provided for such restriction. It may never be exercised by the party or persons now in power, but it is nevertheless available to them and to those who must inevitably succeed them.

As much as any man in public life today, Mr. Roosevelt owes his present high place in national affairs to his own free exercise of the right of free expression. He came to that position by virtue of his success as a dissenter, and his ability to convince the people of the nation that the party then in power was following an improper course. No avenue of furthering his cause was denied to him, or neglected by him. The criticism of what was then the American government, by him and by those associated with him, was relentless and unrestricted.

Events have brought Mr. Roosevelt now where other citizens may dissent from his policies and beliefs, and they must have the right to do so. He denies intent to restrict that right. He has, however, created in the recovery act and its correlated codes the means by which restriction may be accomplished. This is the thing that has caused the publishers to be filled with fear, not only for themselves or their properties but for the rights of citizens of all degrees.

MISPLACED TALENT.

A 16-year-old schoolboy in Saskatchewan recently was sentenced to two years' imprisonment because he had spent his spare time forging $5 bills.

Using a box of school paints a home-made die and some bits of linen paper, this youngster turned out imitation bank notes which astounded the Saskatchewan authorities by their close resemblance to the real thing.

And it is good to note that the judge who sentenced him said that a parole would be recommended if a training school could be persuaded to make a place for him.

A 16-year-old who can use such crude tools to turn out such excellent work—excellent, of course, from a purely technical standpoint—must have a lot of genuine talent in him somewhere.

Given the right kind of handling, such a lad ought to become a most serviceable member of society. It would be tragic if such exceptional ability were permitted to become perverted permanently.

Wee Coppy started talking to the ants. He said, "I think that you are very smart, the way you build your ant house. It looks very strong."

"I suppose it will stand up in the air, where everyone can see it there, for quite a time, unless someone with big feet comes along."

"We know exactly what you mean. For carless folks we are not so keen. They step all over our homes," said one ant, with a frown.

"No sooner is a home built real high, till someone always walks right by, and then, the next thing but we know, our home is trampled down."

"Well, we won't do a thing like that. We would hate to crush a nice home flat," said Goidy. But the ant replied, "Nill that is just what we fear."

"You'll make us happy as can be, if you will take a tip from me, and find some other place to live. Please go away from here."

Then Nature Nick said, "I would suggest that what he asks is really best." So, off the Tinkles scampered, with Wee Coppy in the lead.

They reached a stream. Said Scouty, "Oh, I see a boat. I am going to row. Who wants to go along with me? Some exercise I need."

"I will," said Coppy, jumping in. Then old Nick shouted with a grin. "Row out and touch that hill, of rass that's not so far from the shore."

They wondered, then, what was inside. Wee Coppy touched it, and Scouty cried, "Oh, we have disturbed a muskrat. It is her home, and she is sore."

"You bet I am! Why can't you keep away from here and let me sleep?" exclaimed poor Molly Muskrat. "I thought I was safe and sound."

"That is why I built my home out here. I thought that there was naught to fear." Wee Coppy, answered Coppy, "and we will not hang around."

(The Tinkles see a flying fish in the next story.)

Mrs. C. S. Brewer Laid to Rest
The following obituary, taken from the Rock County Herald, of Laverne, Minn., will be of interest to many readers of these items, as both the Gooch and Brer families were well known in this community. Mrs. Fred Gross of this place is a niece of the departed lady.

The funeral of Mrs. C. S. Brewer, who succumbed early Tuesday morning of last week at her home in this city, following several years' illness, caused by pernicious anemia, was held Thursday afternoon at the home, Rev. Otto A. Brant officiated and the remains were laid to rest in Maplewood cemetery.

Rose Gooch was born May 20, 1868, on a farm near Ashton, Ill., where her girlhood days were spent. After completing her education in the Ashton public schools, she taught for some time in a rural school near that place. Subsequently she devoted her undivided efforts to caring for her aged parents until both had passed away.

She was united in marriage to Charles S. Brewer of Laverne on November 4th, 1903, at Ashton. Mr. and Mrs. Brewer established their permanent residence in this city. No children were born to this union, and the deceased was one of a family of nine children.

Almost at the beginning of thirty years of residence in this community, Mrs. Brewer identified herself with the Presbyterian church, and remained a faithful member, attending its services regularly as long as strength permitted. For two years she was treasurer of the Ladies Aid Society. The also became active in the Eastern Star and White Shrine.

With the earnestness of purpose that prominently characterized her life, Mrs. Brewer went out of her way on numerous occasions to minister in simple, kindly ways to those who were in trouble. She was eager to do what she could to spread cheer and helpfulness. Her last illness was born with great fortitude and patience.

Relatives and friends from distant points who were here to attend the last rites were: Mrs. Eva Miller, Mrs. Ros Leake and daughter, Mildred of Amboy; Mrs. Fred Gross of Franklin Grove; Mrs. Pearl Wilson of Sac City, Ia.; pieces of the deceased; Rev. Frank R. Brewer of Glen Ellyn, Ill., and Dr. E. J. Brewer of Shabbona, Ill., brothers of C. S. Brewer.

Whipp Declines to Use Expert Heipers
Right at His Hand

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Warden Frank D. Whipp of the state penitentiary has all the time there is, just a few flying hours poised between the future and the past. Seize it, live it, use it before it fades away.

The Warden got curious the other day about the historical documents therein and decided to open it. A clerk tried it, but no luck. Warden Whipp tried his hand with no more success. The entire force of civilian clerks took turns; results the same.

And so, with a wealth of safe crackers with lots of background at his command, Warden Whipp still refused to give prison labor the job and called in an expert locksmith from Joliet.

Yesterday is dead and gone, like a fallen autumn leaf Tomorrow is only a vision, a hope, a dream, never arrives. One day is enough, and we are wise enough to take it and have the wit and will to live it.

"Live in day-tight compartments," a great physician told us. Do not let yesterday impose upon today with its vain regrets, or tomorrow belaud it with futile forebodings. Live a day at a time. When today is done let it sit, shut it out of mind, close the door turn the page.

Easy to say but hard to do? Yes, until we learn the trick of it, which is one of the first arts of living if we are not to overdo ourselves and break our backs, if not our hearts. It was what Jesus meant when He taught us to pray, "Give us this day our daily bread."

"Undress your soul at night," said George Herbert, as you do your body. Not in morbid self-examination but by shedding your work, your worry, your weariness, as you do your garments. Drop your sins, your mistakes, and all your fears, and wake up a new man to face a new day.

Herbert had to learn the knack of it, fighting the great white plague in his little rectory at Breckerton. But he did it, turning his days into songs that still sing in the hearts of men to this day. To die daily, as St. Paul said, ensures our resurrection to a new life.

Shut off the future, too, as tightly as the past. Idle dreams, fond fantasies, and empty castles built in the air, are futile. They break our hearts and turn our heads, as

Daily Health Talk

COLD IN THE EYE

What is commonly called a cold in the eye or pink-eye is really an inflammation of the conjunctiva, that is, the membrane covering the eyeball. It is caused by germs.

At times the onset of this condition may be so sudden that the patient believes he has a foreign body in his eye. As the condition progresses the evidence of its inflammatory nature becomes clear, for minute pieces of pus and mucus are to be seen around the eyelashes.

The eyeball itself may become brick red in color due to the congestion of the blood vessels. The inner surfaces of the lids are also red and the lids themselves may become thickened.

Treatment of this condition calls for frequent and gentle washing with a mild lotion. Such a lotion can be made out of boric acid, 2 per cent, table salt, borax or sodium bicarbonate.

The eyes should be washed with the lotion three times daily and after each washing a drop of some mild antiseptic should be dropped within the lower lid. Ten per cent argyrol or 5 per cent tetracetyl, these two being silver compounds.

Before going to bed it is important to grease the eyelashes and the lid margins with petrolatum. This will prevent the lids from sticking together during sleep. Should the lids become adherent, the sufferer experiences much annoyance, and healing is retarded because the drainage of the secretions is interfered with.

At times the conjunctivitis is limited to the corners of the eye. In this condition the redness is seen at the eye margins and it extends a little on to the skin surface. Flakes or small collections of mucus and pus may be seen at the eye margins.

This condition usually responds to the treatment described above, but in addition requires further treatment with zinc sulphate, which should be administered under careful medical supervision.

Meets Gov. Murray's Edict by Assuming Full Control

Washington, Feb. 23—(AP)—The federal government took over relief administration in Oklahoma today and at the same time announced that $1,000,000 would be spent to buy grain and livestock feed for farmers in drought areas of the west.

Harry L. Hopkins, Emergency Relief and Civil Works Administrator, announced that Carl Giles has been named relief administrator in Oklahoma to act as his direct agent and that Governor Murray had been relieved of all responsibility.

The grain to be purchased for farmers in drought areas will be bought in the individual states by the relief administrations. Hopkins said that sometime today allotments would be made to the relief administrations of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Texas, Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma and other states having drought-stricken areas.

By ABRAHAM MOILL
With an almost identical score
to that of the games that Dixon played at DeKalb, the hard-hit-ted DeKalb boys last night beat the local boys last night by the score of 38

to 20. Marking the highest opposition score, the DeKalb squad showed up to their talked-of form, and gave some real examples of sportsmanship and basketball. The lightweight team was without a doubt quite exceptional, and proved to be worth while watching. In fact, the opinion is prevalent that DeKalb this year has one of the best conference teams that has been developed for some time. DeKalb played their final conference game next Saturday with Sterling, and that game should prove quite exciting

and interesting, with, of course,

the DeKalb team coming out in front as usual, with another conference win.

One of the characteristics of last night's game was the fast and smooth playing of both teams. De-

Kalb was especially good under their basket, and had the advantage in height. The hopes of the local fans rose somewhat with each of "Hank" Henry's baskets, all of which swished through without even coming in contact with the hoop. Hank's eight points helped

Dixon a lot, and without a doubt he was averaging some outstanding shots with the result that De-

Kalb was somewhat taken aback, temporarily, and slackened up for a few moments. DeKalb averaged some of their best shots in the first quarter, playing a very high,

and yet consistent type of ball,
making six shots out of fourteen attempts which is quite unusual for a high school team. They broke their record of luck in the second period and were still going to bring up their record. Even in free shots they showed up well and made almost sixty per cent of their free throws. These facts for one reason gave them the edge on Dixon, and then again their type of play was good enough to give them the necessary margin to beat Dixon.

The lightweight game could hardly be called a repetition of the same game played at DeKalb, for at that time (in spite of the tall

lad who jumped, or more appropriately, "reached" center) Dixon gave DeKalb something to worry about, and the final score of 22 to 20 was secured only after the game had gone into an overtime

and the Dixon boys had lost their ability to click on the DeKalb floor.
Last night the local B team lacked their usual punch, and as the scoring indicated they started too late to take the orange and black boys. However, the game in spite of the final score was worth watching, and the team had a good backing for their final home game.

As prementioned, the teams were photographed in action, and without a doubt some very interesting action pictures were secured, for the real to be shown at the theater at a later date. All the photographing was done before the game, with the teams taking turns playing on the offense, with the cameras clicking in the meantime.

The remainder of the film was used in taking pictures of the crowd and then at the conclusion of the game, of the group of guards from each school, in other words, smiles were in style, and everyone who craned their necks to get in range of the camera gave forth a dazzling smile, and shall be rewarded by seeing that same smile on the screen soon. To climax off the evening, it would hardly be just to go on without saying something of the band who performed as usual, and raised the spirits of everyone present. The whole affair was O. K., and we can turn to the data of the contest with the feeling that it was just another good game, and that the salve for the defeat lies in another town about thirteen miles due west of Dixon.

LAYTON BACK IN CONTROL THREE-
CUSHION GAME

Veteran Defeats Welker
Cochrane in Great
Contest

New York, Feb. 24—(AP)—
Johnny Layton, the florid Sedalia, Mo., veteran, who has spent three quarters of his 47 years fighting, wrestling, playing professional

baseball, fishing and playing pool,
is back in control of the three-cushion billiard game today.

After a lapse of four years,
during which an eye injury in his last wrestling match nearly 30 years ago threatened to end his billiards career, the former Missouri carpenter rose to his greatest heights last night to defeat the defending champion, Welker Cochrane of San Francisco, and win his eleventh world's title. The score was 50 to 23.

Got Jump on Champ
Layton has played faster games and scored higher runs, but he never combined a more brilliant display of scoring and safety playing than he did in beating the 37-year-old Cochrane, holder of the balkline title in 1925, in 42 innings. He got the jump on his younger opponent, and aided by a high run of seven and another cluster of five, scored with almost monotonous regularity.

The victory gave Layton a tournament record of nine victories in eleven matches. While Cochrane dropped into a tie for second place, where he must meet Allen Hall of Chicago in the play-off. The match was scheduled for today together with the play-off for fourth place between Willie Hoppe and J. N.
Bozeman, Jr. of Vallejo, Calif.

Besides winning first prize of $1,500 and 15 per cent of the game
receipts, estimated at $1,000, Layton had the highest grand average.
Johnny scored 526 points in 559 innings for an average of 941. Only a fraction of a point behind was Cochrane with .937, combined with 868 for Hall.

Lehigh Has All-
Purdue Coaching
Staff on Gridiron

Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 24—(AP)— Martin B. Westerman, who played varsity football for three years at Purdue and then served a year as line coach, is coming to Lehigh University as assistant varsity coach.

Westerman will be in charge of the line, giving Lehigh an all-Purdue gridiron staff. Glen Harneson, former Purdue backfield star, is to be the head coach and Elbert (EB) Caraway, onetime back and end, returns as his other assistant. Paul Calvert, Purdue 32, remains as freshman coach.

Playing center, guard and tackle,
Westerman won his letter in 1930,
'31 and '32. He graduated in 1933
and returned as assistant coach
last fall.

TUNNEY THINKS LOUGHRAN HAS A GREAT CHANCE

While "Old Hard Rock" Tom Heeney Favors Big Italian

Miami, Fla., Feb. 24—(AP)—If there is any value in the combined opinions of two retired heavyweights who once met in the same ring for the championship—Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney—then the 15 round duel of Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran Wednesday night may wind up a draw.

Tunney, who knocked old Hard Rock Heeney out in 11 rounds in his ring valedictory in 1928, saw Loughran pelt his burly sparring partners in West Palm beach yesterday, and while he did not pick Tommy out and out to win, he did everything else but.

"If I didn't think Tommy had a chance, I wouldn't go to the fight," Tunney said. "But I will be there.
It should be a real battle."

Tunney fought Loughran back in 1922, when both were but a short way up the ladder, and Tunney
won the verdict of newspapermen
though the bout, an eight-round affair in Philadelphia, was a no-decision contest.

Heeney's story is different, including his opinion of next Wednesday night's winner, which he believes will be Carnera.

"I've been watching Carnera work a good deal," Tom says, "and everything a man can have in his favor in a ring he has. He's terribly big and strong. He has reach, height, endurance, and youth.
That's the important thing, youth.
As fighters go Tommy is a grandfather in the ring. It doesn't seem possible that Tommy can overcome these handicaps."

The Miami Boxing Commission
yesterday appointed Leo Shea as referee for the match after the managers of the two warriors failed to agree on a choice.

124 HORSES ARE ENTERED FOR '34
KENTUCKY DERBY

Most of Leading Three Year Olds Found in
the Entry List

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 24—(AP)— Singing Wood, generally regarded as the champion two-year-old of 1933; the Dixiana Farm's fleet filly, Mata Hari, and 122 others of the nation's leading three-year-olds were announced today as nominated for the 60th running of the Kentucky derby here May 5.

The number named was six more than last year, despite the reduction from $50,000 to $30,000 in the added value of the stake.

Out of the 124, some dozen or more of the thoroughbreds will show enough luck and stamina
during the gruelling spring training to enter the breath-taking mile and a quarter race at Churchill Downs.

Three Fillies Out
The nominations include 76 colts, 37 geldings and 11 fillies, and include all but four of the ten leading money winners among last year's two-year-olds. Three of the four, Far Star, High Glee and Wise Daughter are fillies and many horsemen do not regard a filly's chance as good in early spring races.

The other is High Quest whose owner, Marshall Field, recently announced he would reserve for the Belmont Stakes. About the only other notable absentee is the GreenTree Stable's first minster, Cool E. R. Bradley, who enjoys the unique distinction of having won four Kentucky derbies, named four of his Idle Hour Farm thoroughbred this year. Bazaar, his filly which defeated Banking Colts last year in several important events,
and three colts, Boy Valet Blue
Again and Baker's Dozen.

Married Flirts

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married on the same day as LILA HOTELING
and DEKALB BLISS, but while Lila lives in luxury Gypsy has to struggle to keep expenses within Tom's income.

After Gypsy's son is born her days become a dreary round of caring for him and for her home.
She suspects Tom is interested in VERA BRAY who works in the same office.

Lila divorces Derek. Vera finds excuses to see Tom often and one night, after tricking him into taking her home, she runs away with him. Tom leaves home. Gypsy stays together. Tom leaves home.

Derek, learning Lila divorced
him to marry MARKO BROU-GHTON, richer and older, comes invited to a dinner party given by Lila. Gypsy is there and also HUNT GIBSON. Derek, who has been drinking, falls from a balcony to the street. Several days later he dies.

Tom and Gypsy quarrel and Tom leaves home. He is sent out of town on business and is unable to send word to Gypsy. She does not receive his letters because she has gone to her parents' home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLV

WHEN Gypsy got off the train
she could see the blue line of the Sound far to the left. She drew a long breath. She held David up to see and he blew an ecstatic bubble as she lifted him into the lone taxi drawn up beside the station platform. In the clear wash of midsummer sunlight the outlines of her surroundings were sharply etched.
Scrub oak and evergreens against a background of white, white sand. Beyond a straggling road to the beach. After the train would away from the left. She here, utter and complete, and the girl in the blue linen frock with the white capped baby on her knee, shivered.

Her thoughts, released, sprang back once more toward what she had been fleeing. Was she, really, a deserted wife? Was she, the "unknown woman" whom, presumably, reporters and detectives sought in the death of Derek Bliss? Ridiculous! And yet, grimly, it was true. She was trembling with fatigue. The day had been a long one, with a journey
by train, by ferry, by yet another train, but her physical sensations were blotted out by an agony of mind which comprehended that all her running away was of no actual avail. One could not run away from oneself!

The taxi jolted over the bumps
the particular road was unspeakable and the driver glanced back at her over his shoulder, grinning a sort of apology. He was a rough-looking fellow in a ragged coat. She did not remember having seen him at Wading Hollow before. All at once panic seized her. What was she doing in this expanse of sea and sky,
alone with this small, adorable,
dependent child?

She directed the driver. It was just a few hundred yards beyond,
she said, yes, the little house with the white gate. But as she alighted and took out her purse to pay him she saw no one. The green door was shut and rambler
roses drooped over the gateway, withering unlooked.

Gypsy thought the taxi driver looked at her oddly as he turned away. With the key which Tom had always kept in his top drawer she unlocked the door and stepped inside. She heard the chug-chug of the taxi with relief.

WELL, at least she was here.
After all her long, dispiriting,
desperate day, she was safe within four walls. She put David down on the big, flat white bed
in the small room opening out of the sitting room and flung off her hat.

"Was he hungry? Did he want his supper?"

In her bag she had a few tins of pureed vegetables. There was a farm about a quarter of mile away, she remembered, where they had been accustomed to buy milk. Could she carry the baby all that way or dared she get him to sleep and leave him while she went to fetch it?

She lighted

SATURDAY, FEB. 24

(Read Luke XVIII:1-8)

"And Not To Faint."

If there is danger in repeating the same prayer too often there is danger also in not repeating it often enough. Of our Lord's three parables on prayer, two stress the value of persistence. A common blunder is to give up too soon. Because God does not give us at once what we ask, we lose hope. It is by perseverance that we build up in ourself the character essential to make use of the blessings for which we are asking. The parables of the churlish neighbor and the heartless judge are often misunderstood. Some suppose that the neighbor and the judge represent God. It is assumed that the aim of the parables is to teach that we can get what we want if we only nag God long enough. That misses the point entirely. The lesson is that persistence is such a mighty force that it often conquers the most despicable and stubborn specimens of human nature conceivable, and that it is certain therefore to prevail in our dealing with the tender-hearted and justice-loving Judge of all the earth.

PRAYER: O God of patience, have mercy on us yet awhile and we shall endeavor to do better. We confess our fickleness and our unwillingness to wait on Thee. Give us the grace of holding on. May we ask and keep on asking, knowing that at last we shall receive. Amen.

SUNDAY, FEB. 25

(Read Mark IX:17-29)

"Only Believe."

Only a trustful spirit can pray with boldness and joy. Doubt cuts the nerve of prayer and blocks access to the heart of God. We must believe that He is the rewarder of them who diligently seek Him. We do not actually believe in prayer unless we believe that prayer is answered. Offering petitions is not enough. There must be replies. The replies must not only be wished for but looked for and expected. A Christian lives in the atmosphere of anticipation. All asking and no receiving leaves the heart disappointed and hungry. The prayer of life of Jesus was built on a tremendous belief in God. Nothing in His disciples so amazed and saddened Him as their feeble faith. Nothing so delighted Him as an unexpected exhibition of daring confidence in God. Even a little faith made Him jubilant. He was sure that faith small as a grain of mustard seed can accomplish results which men commonly reckon impossible. No exhortation was oftener on His lips than— "Have faith in God. Only believe."

PRAYER: O Thou God of patience, have pity on us yet awhile and we shall try to do better. We refuse to give ourselves up to Thee completely and that is why our victories are few and our defeats are many. Lord, increase our faith! We believe, help Thou our unbelief. Amen.

NOTICE!

I have found that most people who buy coal have a good idea of the definite coal fields, knowing the quality of each. They seem to care nothing about our fancy names. What they want is what field—what mine does it come from. So we have tried in our advertising to explain where each coal originates, what field it comes from as we intend in every case to have the best coal coming from its respective field.

COAL

PEOPLE'S ECONOMY—Mined in Illinois. We have constant reorders.

BRAZIL BLOCK—Deep shaft mine; the old Brazil Block field in Indiana.

HARRISBURG LUMP and HARRISBURG FURNACE—Southern Illinois. Joins the Franklin County. The same field... We think a better coal.

EAST KENTUCKY—Mary Helen, the well known Harlan field.

POCAHONTAS—The old original Pocahontas field in Virginia.

As low in price as any coals of equal quality from their respective fields.

KINDLING—Cut up and split ready for use.

We require our delivermen to take every pains. Do a neat job in putting the coal in the basement and leave the customer pleased and satisfied with the service. Anyone that does not get this service from us please call us on the phone.
